

Introduction

A Philosophy of Learning .....	4
What are the most important aspects of a warmup session?
How is this book different from Book 1 of Successful Warmups?
Should I be training my singers' voices or educating the singers themselves about vocal production?
How can I teach aesthetics to my singers?
Some of my singers already have great voices. How will these warmups help them?
How can I teach individual singers within a choral context?
Should the singers memorize the warmups?
What are the advantages of a structured approach to vocal production for choirs?
How should the warmup session relate to the choral repertoire?
What should I do if there are warmups left over at the end of the year?
Pedagogy .....	7
How do the singers learn new concepts or skills?
How do singers retain what they have learned?
How can I, as a conductor/teacher, use my own eyes and ears to advantage?
Being Prepared for Different Choral Situations .....	9
How do I adjust SATB warmups for the voicing of my choir?
What differences will I find when I switch from adult to children's choirs?
What should I do when new singers join the choir?
For an auditioned choir, how should I choose my singers?

Special thanks to:

Deral Johnson, who taught me so much about vocal production for choirs;

Constance Newland, who gave me private lessons in voice when I began to teach choral music in the schools and who introduced me to the details needed to create a musical performance;

Ken Fleet, who offered so many perceptive comments and suggestions as well as continuous enthusiastic encouragement for this project;

All the singers in my choirs and my private students who have been the catalyst for the creation of these warmups;

Kathy, for her wonderful drawings of singers;

Mirta, for all her hard work on the details of this project;

Terry White, for her understanding, editorial skills and enthusiasm.
